Reed Predicts Failure For Tax Revision

New Substitute Censure Move Reported Gaining Headway

Bipartisan Action Is Under Study

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — A move to substitute for pending charges a new censure count accusing Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) of maligning the Watkins inquiry committee was reported gaining headway among senators today.

Such a proposal has been discussed as a possible bipartisan action by senators who have made no public commitment on the current charges that McCarthy treated an elections subcommittee with contempt and "repeatedly abused" Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, a witness before McCarthy's Investigations subcommittee early this year.

It is figuring importantly in behind-the-scenes discussion while the Senate itself is in recess until Nov. 29. The recess was ordered Thursday after McCarthy entered Bethesda Navy Hospital for treatment of an injured elbow.

The hospital said today that McCarthy's condition continues satisfactory.

Sen. Bennett (R-Utah) has said he will propose a third censure count, based on McCarthy's accusing Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) of cowardly actions and saying Watkins' six-man committee had served as the "unwitting handmaiden" of the Communist party in recommending censure.

A Democratic senator who asked to remain anonymous said he believes a majority of the Senate thinks McCarthy should be censured for those statements.

This Democrat said his surveys indicate the Zwicker count has lost support steadily since Sen. Case (R-SD), who drafted it as a member of the Watkins committee, announced he would not back that portion of the censure resolution.

The Democratic senator said he himself would not vote to censure McCarthy for his treatment of Zwicker because he believes any such action might indirectly affirm a right of the executive department to silence witnesses before congressional committees.

Expressing a similar view, a Republican senator who said he had made up his mind not to support either count in the pending resolution, said McCarthy's attack on the Watkins committee had put a different complexion on censure, so far as he is concerned.

"McCarthy has lost support by criticizing Watkins and the committee," said this GOP senator, who asked not to be quoted by name. He added he is inclined to vote to rebuke McCarthy for these criticisms.

But Case told a radio-TV audience (NBC's Youth Wants to Know) today that McCarthy's "remarks of the other day have not prevented our committee from functioning," and indicated he considers that a requisite for censure.

He said that senators must have considerable latitude in making remarks.

"They ought to be able to expose or condemn actions which they think should be exposed or brought to the attention of the American people," he said. "But if that goes to the point of preventing a Senate committee from acting, or obstructing its action, then is when censure should rest."

Case said he still favors censuring McCarthy on the count involving the 1952 Senate Elections subcommittee unless McCarthy apologizes or explains his actions, but that many senators—said he did not know how many—are joining him in opposing censure for the Zwicker affair.

Shoots Self Climbing Fence

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP) — A Pittsburgh steel contractor accidentally shot and killed himself while hunting on his farm at Butler, Pa., today, police report.

Dead is Frank J. Meyer, 49, president of F. J. Meyer, Inc. Police said he apparently shot himself as he was climbing a fence on the farm.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Esther Meyer, two sons, Russell F. and Joseph E. Meyer, a sister and two brothers.

Briton Says McCarthy Has Damaged U.S. Reputation Throughout Entire World

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Sir Oliver Franks said tonight Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) has damaged the reputation of the United States throughout the world and it is a tragedy that so many Americans are unaware of this.

The former British ambassador to the United States told Britons in a radio speech McCarthy has made millions of people in Europe and Asia change their minds about the United States and lose confidence in the future of American democracy.

"He has made it easier to jump the Soviet Union and the United States together as the two great threats to the peaceful progress of mankind," he said.

Franks, who served in Washington from 1948 to 1952, is now chairman of Lloyd's Bank.

Franks asked the British public not to judge the United States solely by Sen. McCarthy, saying there has never been any evidence that he might dominate America "and, in the past few months, signs have accumulated that his star has passed the zenith."

The former ambassador, whose wife is an American, said the greatest source of difficulty between Britain and the United States is a widespread fear that the Americans will get the United Kingdom and others into a third world war.

"I am not going to argue that this fear is baseless," he added. "I have far too much respect for the instinct of the British people."

But he referred to what he termed two critical periods—when the U. S. forces suffered setbacks in Korea in the winter of 1950-51, and when the French were defeated in Indochina last summer.

"On each occasion," he said, "distinguished members of the U. S. government and of the American armed forces publicly advocated the extension of the fighting by sea blockade and bombing from the air."

Yet on neither occasion did extreme policies prevail, he said.

Franks said U. S. foreign policy through two administrations has had a remarkable consistency.

"Furthermore," he said, "in spite of the vigor with which sudden changes and extreme solutions have often been urged, it has been cautious and responsible."

The American people, he said, want peace.

NATO Military Chiefs Father To Survey Europe's Defense Pact In Light Of A-Weapons

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Military chiefs of the NATO nations gather here tomorrow to begin a periodic reassessment of the mutual defense system, including the effect of new atomic era weapons of Western Europe's forces.

This will be the 10th session of the Military Committee, composed of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff or their representatives from each of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

The United States' top strategy agency, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, met in a Sunday session today to consider a variety of matters, including affairs in connection with the session of the NATO Military Committee.

Gen. Nathan Twining, Air Force chief, returned from a European trip Saturday, two days ahead of his schedule, to be on hand for the Sunday meeting in the Pentagon. Adm. Robert Carney, chief of naval operations, delayed an overseas trip for the special meeting.

The two-or-three-day series of meetings of the NATO committee will be the first since the recent Big Power meetings in Paris at which a broad understanding for inclusion of Western Germany was reached. Although this agreement is still subject to ratification by the individual governments, the effect of the creation of a German armed force on NATO military planning and organization will be a major item on the committee's agenda.

Several batteries (probably about 30 individual weapons) of the Army's 280 mm. cannon, which can fire a nuclear shell about 30 miles, have been in Europe since early this year.

Because of political and psychological reasons abroad, however, the United States so far has taken no steps toward any substantial reduction in its present ground force force on the Continent.

Big Gain In National Income Shown By New Comprehensive Commerce Department Survey

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — The nation's economy has doubled in size and changed sharply in character during the last quarter century, the Commerce Department reported today in a special study.

The "most significant" change in character since 1929, the department said, has been a three-fold increase in government spending, due largely to much bigger national security outlays.

But there were other deep running changes, too, when the economy of 1953 was compared with that of 1929, just before the start of the great depression.

These changes showed sharp differences in spending for personal use, and in the pattern of personal spending, accompanied by a decline in the farmer's share in the economy, a big rise in industry's share, particularly that of manufacturing, and a marked increase in the percentage of national income being paid out as wages and salaries.

Here are some highlights of the quarter century report in the Commerce Department's 250-page from 1929 to 1953:

In 1929, the nation produced 194 billion dollars worth of goods and services. By 1953 this gross national product total had risen to 265 billion. (The latest Commerce Department reports indicate that the gross national production of goods and services this year will be about 355 billion dollars.)

With the 1929-1953 figures revised to take account of price changes during the intervening years, total production rose from a "constant dollar" level of 149 billion dollars in 1929 to 307 billion in 1953, an increase in actual output of about 106 per cent.

X-Ray Machine Purchase Is Big Project

THE 1954 Christmas Seal sale is now open. A goal of $10,000 has been set for this year.

Envelopes containing the colorful seals were mailed to Monroe County residents on Friday. Bonds have also been mailed, according to Horace G. Heller, president of the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society.

This year's seal uses the traditional Christmas design. It shows a gaily decorated tree with children standing beside it and the double-barred cross, historical symbol of the fight against tuberculosis.

Funds from the seal sale are used within Monroe County to help local residents recover from TB.

This year the county Society purchased a $6,000 X-ray machine for the General Hospital. The machine is used to give Chest X-rays to all persons admitted to the hospital.

It will also be used to X-ray food handlers, laborers and industrial employees within the county, according to Mrs. Estelle Fleming, executive secretary of the Society. The Society will pay all costs of the machine and for X-raying admissions and other local groups.

During 1953, Mrs. Fleming said, 13 cases of tuberculosis occurred among Monroe County residents. All were treated in State and Veterans hospitals during that year.

More important, however, are the number of TB cases still to be found. It is in this area that the local Society carries on a constant, year-round campaign.

Its office is located at 621 Sarah St. in Stroudsburg. The Society receives its sole support from the money received through the sale of Christmas Seals and bonds.

Out of each dollar collected from the seal sale $6 cents stays in Monroe County, Mrs. Fleming said. Another eight cents is sent to the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis and Health Society for the use within the State. The remaining six cents from each dollar goes to the National organization for continued research in providing new TB cures and medicines.

The county society is now 35 years old. It was organized on Dec. 17, 1919. Never before has the Society made a request for extra money to help finance a project.

This year, however, the directors increased the organization's quota by $1,500. The additional money is to be used to help finance the X-ray equipment now being bought for installation at the hospital.

Monroe County residents are asked to purchase as many seals as they can; to return their money to the Society as quickly as possible.

With continued public support, the Tuberculosis Society and its State and National organizations will be able to carry out its highly successful drive to prove that tuberculosis can be prevented and, even if already present, can be cured, Mrs. Fleming said.

West Germany Shuns Soviets On New Pact

By BRACK CURRY
BONN, Germany, Nov. 21 (AP) — West Germany made plain today it wants no part of Russia's projected all-European security conference—either Nov. 29 or later—at the price of delay in ratification of the Paris accords for German rearmament.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government rejected Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's conditional offer Saturday to postpone the security pact which Molotov originally proposed to be held in Moscow or Paris next week.

Molotov's condition was that West, which had manifest no intention of attending such hurry up talks until the Paris accords are out of the way, hold up the ratification.

In a statement paralleling views expressed in Washington, London and Paris, Adenauer's government said:

"This is simply a new attempt by the Soviets to hinder the ratification of the Paris agreements. Without doubt this represents an attempt by the Soviet Union to put very heavy pressure on the West. On the other hand, the Soviet Union is not prepared to make any real concessions to the West in the event the Western Powers should abstain from ratifying the Paris agreements."

"A change in the present German viewpoint toward the question of the ratification of the (Paris) agreements is therefore not to be expected."

British Co-Op Calls For End On U.S. Aids

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP) — The London branch of the Cooperative party called today for withdrawal of American military forces from Britain.

Delegates to the party's annual conference approved by a narrow margin a resolution declaring "the continued presence of U. S. servicemen in this country is an affront to those members of the commonwealth continuously decry by America in that attempt to secure a world settlement."

The Cooperative party is affiliated with the Labor party in political campaigns.

Another resolution adopted urged seating of Communist China in the U. N.

Hungary Gives Kethly Pardon

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 21 (AP) — The government announced a pardon today for Miss Anna Kethly, a Social Democratic leader and former speaker of the House who dropped out of sight after opposing a merger of the Social Democrats with the Communist party in 1948.

Miss Kethly, now about 60, was deputy chairman of the short-lived Hungarian-American Society after World War II.

Russian Veto Maneuver Jars Possible East-West Amity On Atoms-For-Peace Plan Study

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP) — The United States sharply rejected today Soviet Russia's new move to clamp Security Council veto power on President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

A U. S. delegation spokesman said the move is as unacceptable as it was when Russia's Andrei Vishinsky first argued for it last week in the U. N. Assembly main political committee.

The Russian maneuver, jarring what looked like new East-West amity, came in the form of an amendment presented by the Russians some hours after Vishinsky conferred with U. S. Chief Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. on the Eisenhower program Saturday.

The amendment proposed that an international atomic agency to deal with the atoms-for-peace goal should be responsible to the U. N. General Assembly, as well as to the U. N. Security Council, "in cases provided for by the U. N. charter," meaning questions touching on threats to peace and security.

Some U. S. sources expressed surprise Vishinsky had changed his pitch so suddenly. Late last week the Soviet deputy foreign minister hinted he would go along with a revised resolution brought in by the United States and six cosponsors to set up the atomic agency and provide for a world scientific conference on atomic energy next year.

Vishinsky clearly suggested then he would agree to negotiate later on just how the proposed agency should be linked to the U. N. He appeared to have dropped his insistence that the atoms-for-peace program be linked directly with disarmament.

The new Russian proposal presumably explained in the Lodge-Vishinsky talk but not made public, not only took the question back a few paces but jolted any idea that a vote would be reached Monday.

Some Western sources still voiced hope the Russians, spurned on the veto question and expecting defeat on a move to get Red China and East Germany invited to the scientific congress, still would vote for the broad outlines of the Eisenhower program.

The U. S. delegation, headed by Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, is expected to favor formation of a new international finance corporation with a 100-million-dollar capital to aid underdeveloped countries. But the Economic Commission for Latin America has recommended a 10-year investment program at the rate of a billion dollars annually.

Democrats May Hold Off Changes To '56

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Rep. Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) today predicted a failure for a Democratic drive to revamp the mammoth tax revision program passed by Congress earlier this year.

The Democrats indicated their strategy will be to hold off most major changes until 1956 — then try to push through a big income tax cut for everybody.

Reed was one of the architects of the Republican-sponsored act which rebuilt most of the tax laws, providing about $1,377,000,000 in annual tax cuts chiefly through bigger deductions. He gives way to Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn.) as chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee when Democrats take control of Congress in January.

Taking note of Democratic pledges to make a searching review of the whole tax structure, Reed declared in a statement:

"The American people found out what a Democratic tax revision program means—more taxes, new taxes, and higher taxes. The American people do not want any more of that kind of tax revision."

Rep. Sam Rayburn (D-Texas), slated to be House speaker, has blasted a new tax revision effort as a "Must" on the Democratic program in Congress. He said Democrats will look for inequities and try to correct them.

Several Democrats explained today, however, that they probably would have to "study" effects of this year's vast, 950-page revision act during most of 1955.

Then, they predicted, Democrats will launch a fight in 1956 for a new income tax cut—probably by increasing individual exemptions—and other changes.

They said the budget outlook presumably will be more favorable in 1956. President Eisenhower has predicted a deficit of about five billion dollars for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955.

Not overlooked in this reckoning is the fact that 1956 will be a presidential election year.

Eisenhower, Reed and other Republican leaders barely beat off a Democratic drive in the past Congress to include in the tax revision bill a $100 increase in exemptions for each taxpayer and each dependent.

Reed said he believed the GOP program "will withstand any Democratic attacks during the next session," and added:

"I will fight to the extent of my ability any Democratic attempt to wreck that program in the forthcoming Congress."

"The new Republican tax revision law provides fairer tax treatment for dependents, more liberal deductions for medical expenses, tax relief for retired people and a host of other changes designed to help the average taxpayer," Reed said.

Democrats attacked the program on charges it gave too many benefits to corporations and their wealthy stockholders, too little relief to the man in the street. Republicans countered that more than half the benefits actually went to individual taxpayers, and the cuts for business were needed to encourage expansion and create jobs.

Coffee Prices Jump Three Cents

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP) — General Foods Corp. announced today a three cents per pound rise in its price for wholesale coffee.

J. K. Evans, general manager of the firm's Maxwell House division, said that the price of coffee previously had dropped 20 cents per pound from the market peak this year, but that higher cost of green coffee was partly responsible for the present increase.

Drives Off Ferry Ship

CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP) — A man drowned Saturday when he drove his speeding car off the Chester-Bridgeport ferry slip during a heavy fog. Louis Kapelski, president of the ferry company, who was in the toll booth at the time, told police he tried to stop the car but it roared by and crashed through a wooden guard gate into the water.

Shareowners To Vote On Two Actions

AT A SPECIAL meeting in the company's general office in Allentown, Wednesday, Dec. 15, shareowners of Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. will be asked to approve the merger of Pennsylvania Water & Power Co. and the Scranton Electric Co. into Pennsylvania Power & Light. Joint merger agreements have already been signed by these companies and PP&L.

At the same meeting PP&L's shareowners will also be asked to approve an increase in the capital stock of the company in the amount of 214,294 shares of common stock and 107,462 shares of series preferred stock to be used in connection with the Penn Water merger, and rescind previous stockowners action to reduce capitalization of PP&L by those shares of common and preferred stock not used in PP&L's previous exchange offer to Scranton Electric shareowners which expired on July 15, 1953.

Shareowners will be further asked to authorize an increase of one million shares of common stock and 500,000 shares of series preferred stock and to increase the authorized indebtedness of the company by one hundred million dollars, these to be set aside by the company for future financing purposes.

The company states that it has no plans for issuing any of these stocks for debt securities at the present time.

Charles Oakes, PP&L president, also announced today the company's intention, subject to necessary approvals by regulatory authorities, of reopening the previously-expired Scranton exchange plan. Under this reopening the holders of approximately 9 per cent of the Scranton shares not yet exchanged will have another opportunity to convert their shares to PP&L stock on the same basis as the original plan. This move comes as a result of numerous requests from among these remaining Scranton shareholders for a "second round" opportunity to take advantage of the exchange offer.

Civil Defense Districts To Share $895,362 Fund

THE STATE COUNCIL of Civil Defense announced eight general purposes will benefit from the Federal matching fund total of $895,362 at a meeting of defense directors of the surrounding northeastern Pennsylvania counties Thursday at the Lackawanna County Courthouse in Scranton.

That total is for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955 with the major portion of the sum to be made available for use by the counties, cities, boroughs, towns and townships of the Commonwealth.

Communications heads the list of general purposes for which funds have been allocated with a total of $490,000. This includes all types of radio equipment as well as any telephone equipment valued at $200 or more.

Warning device systems are supported by $215,462. This contains all types of audible signals and sirens. Some $75,000 is provided for engineering and $36,200 for rescue services.

Another $35,700 is supplied for training and education. Various projectors, audio and visual aids come under this heading. Health and special weapons is being allowed $18,000; public information and education $15,000 and emergency welfare $10,000.

The Federal Civil Defense Administration has not allocated any funds this year for use in the purchase of fire engines or firefighting equipment. But several materials will be available for use by fire departments.

Hugh Hoke, administrative assistant in charge of matching funds disbursing for the state, spoke to the various directors concerning the coming year. He reminded them to foresee their needs and check on needed equipment early.

All purchases must be done through the political subdivisions. The deadline for applications to acquire needed equipment or material is March 15.

Air Academy Receives 896 Applications

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Young men who enter the new Air Force Academy are going to be so busy studying the "Three R's" and science that they will have comparatively little time to learn flying.

This was stressed in the Air Force Academy catalogue, issued today. It sets forth what a prospective air officer will have to do to enter the academy and what he will be kept doing after he gets in. The school opens at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, Colo., next July.

Air Force headquarters said in issuing the booklet that 896 applications have been received to date for the 300 vacancies in the first class at the new academy.

The school catalogue shows that the officer-cadet will spend 2,779 hours in classroom work during his four years and only 426 hours taking all forms of air instruction.

The booklet states that "the many facets" of cadet training which must be completed at the academy "preclude the possibility of offering a complete course of pilot training."

Upon graduation men will be given the wings of aircraft observers and the designation of navigators. But upon entering the academy each cadet must sign a statement obligating him to take pilot training after graduation and to accept a pilot's rating if he qualifies.

State To Mail Renewal Cards To Drivers

APPROXIMATELY 4,450,000 applications for renewal of operator's licenses for 1955 will be mailed from the Bureau of Motor Vehicles this week.

Director Alvin C. Walker disclosed that it will represent the largest distribution of renewal applications in the history of the Commonwealth.

Beginning today, he said, the new driver's cards will start being returned to applicants at the rate of about 100,000 per day until the deadline—Jan. 31, 1955.

Walker pointed out that postmasters will deliver the applications to persons who have moved within the same postal area. Such drivers should show their new address on the applications, and mail them back to Harrisburg. Without the current address, he warned, the finished cards cannot be delivered, but must be returned to the bureau by the Post Office.

An operator who has moved from one postal area to another should advise the bureau immediately. To do so, he should use Form RVG-2, available from automobile clubs and dealers, aidmen and squire, as well as notaries public.

Since World War II, an average of 190,000 immigrants a year have come to the United States.

Thanksgiving Skit To Be Aired Tuesday

STUDENTS OF the drama and music classes at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College will present "Come, All Ye Faithful" over WVPO on Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. The program is a dramatic skit with music, portraying a family celebrating Thanksgiving in 1954 and reflecting on how much we have changed our customs without altering the original meaning of the festivities.

The family, which might represent any family in Stroudsburg today, is played by Miss Cathy Metz, James Mitchell and James Wilkins. Their lines were written by the members of Alpha Psi Omega, honorary dramatics fraternity on the campus, working under the direction of Miss Katherine McFarland of the faculty.

Musical numbers will be played

Bloodmobile At East Stroudsburg Methodist Church Nov. 24

Parents Are Expected To Be Big Aides

THE NEARLY 300 Monroe County parents whose children received free Gamma Globulin during the polio season will have a chance to show their gratitude on the eve of Thanksgiving.

Red Cross Bloodmobile pays its monthly visit to the county on Wednesday. It will stop from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

This month's visit is officially sponsored by the Monroe County Ministerium. But the Jackson Township Parent Teachers Association is also busy soliciting donors for the blood drive.

It was in Jackson Township School that the first mass inoculation of county children with GG occurred. Two Reeder residents—one a pupil at the township school—were stricken with polio last month.

Because the case was one with which all the Reeder school children had been in close contact, physicians and State nurses carried out an inoculation program for the entire school. More than 100 boys and girls received the polio-preventive shots.

As has always been the case with the globulin provided by the national-state program, no charge was made for the GG.

Gamma globulin, however, is a blood "fraction". It is made from whole blood collected by the Red Cross in cooperation with the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation.

A record number of blood donors will be needed in the current drive to help replace the vast quantities of whole blood used in making GG. Also receiving the globulin injections locally were more than 100 pupils of the Polk Township School at Kresgeville.

The success of this month's Bloodmobile visit is of prime importance, Red Cross officials emphasize. Persons who wish to contribute to the blood collection may contact their own minister or any member of the Monroe County Ministerium.

Jackson township residents should make pledges either through their ministers or members of the PTA.

Monroe County's record in the collection of blood during the past six months has been poor. Despite an extra visit at the Tobyhanna Signal Depot which helped boost the county's quota, a deficit will be shown unless donors turn out in large numbers, Red Cross officials said.

Members of the Ministerium, meanwhile, urged their congregations to take part in the Wednesday drive as an expression of gratitude during the Thanksgiving season.

Snyder Case Hearing Set For Today

PRELIMINARY hearing on an involuntary manslaughter charge against Glenn J. Snyder, 28, Kunkletown RD2, begins this morning at 10 before Justice of the Peace Herbert G. Bonser, East Stroudsburg.

Snyder is charged with driving the car which struck and fatally injured Amzi Hoffman, 73, of Brodheadville, near his home Nov. 12. Snyder is also charged with failing to stop at an accident scene.

Charges against Snyder followed investigation by Fern Ridge State police and a laboratory analysis of paint samples taken from Snyder's car. The hearing started about 4 p.m. Friday, some two hours after Pfc. Joseph Warkala had sworn out an information against Snyder, and had been issued a warrant.

Justice Bonser read off the charges, but before Snyder made a plea of guilty or innocent, a telephone call from District Attorney Elmer D. Christine interrupted proceedings. Christine relayed a request by a bonding company representative that the hearing be postponed until the agent could be present. The request was granted by Justice Bonser and the hearing continued until this morning.

Father Convicted In Suffocation Of Five Children

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP)—A Locomotive County father was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the deaths of five of his six children.

A jury of six men and six women returned the verdict after a short deliberation and recommended leniency for Bernard J. O'Brien, 32, Williamsport.

Five of O'Brien's children suffocated in a fire that swept through their home here last May 3. The sixth child, Patrick O'Brien, 6, suffered only slight burns.

Judge Charles S. Williams, who heard testimony in the trial which began Wednesday, said he will sentence O'Brien next Monday. O'Brien, visibly shaken and talking in a low quivering voice, told the court how he had been on a "day-long round of drinking" the afternoon and night before the tragedy occurred.

Fire Chief Harold E. Kinley said the fire apparently was caused by a lighted cigarette dropped on a sofa in the living room of the home.

Later Than You Think

At risk of ruining the day for a goodly number of household budget keepers and bill payers, it is our solemn duty under the editorial writers' Code of Cliches and Accepted Firm Stands to call attention to the arrival of certain unmistakable signs of the times.

Even ere the last Halloween goblin had beat it back to his lair, display placards of a chubby, red-dressed figure in a sleigh were going up. Even while the turkey gobbler crop is still fattening, red and green hunting has blossomed out in stores, along with multi-colored lights strung about.

The other day we heard "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" for the first time this year. Like magic, toy departments have lost their off-season lackluster to emerge in noisy splendor.

A small boy of our acquaintance has begun the second revised draft of a letter to the North Pole and his mother hums merrily over the advertisements in The Daily Record. And older boys up to 90 have been seen on buses with toy electric train catalogs.

All of which adds up to the fact that it's later than you think. At least it was later than we thought. We thumbed through the calendar and discovered with no little dismay that, starting tomorrow, there are only 29 more shopping days until Christmas.

Public Favor?

An item in the November issue of Campus-Scope, faculty publication at Pennsylvania State University, must bring joy to the parties mentioned. It says—

"Consensus of public opinion surveys on how various professions rank as to prestige and social standing shows them to be in this order: (1) doctors, (2) college professors, (3) scientists and bankers, (4) lawyers, architects and dentists . . . followed by novelists, school teachers, farmers, electricians, newspaper reporters, traveling salesmen, mail carriers, and plumbers."

An absence from that list of well-thought-of occupations is glaringly apparent in this election month. Public officials aren't mentioned, even among such also-rans as newspaper reporters and traveling salesmen.

Get Ready For 'S-D Day'

The designation of Wednesday, Dec. 15, as "S-D Day" is a stunt, pure and simple. It's a stunt in which you and every other American will take part.

The idea of an all-out effort for a "Safe Driving Day" was conceived by the President's Action Committee for Traffic Safety as the best possible way to "implant in the minds of all motorists and pedestrians the realization that, if they can greatly reduce accidents on S-D Day, they can do so every day in the year."

A nation-wide score sheet will be kept on the 24-hour period. In the Poconos throughout Pennsylvania, all across the nation, every effort will be made to keep the day completely unmarred by traffic accidents. It is a wonderful goal, even if no one expects it to be achieved. Someone will goof somewhere.

To get ready for "S-D Day," it might be a good idea for you to go into "training." Mull over all the old trite—but true—safety slogans and give them a little more than lip-service, practice ordinary courtesy and respect for the other fellow, and abide by the law—whether you're driving or walking. If you will do all this, your chances of still being around on Dec. 15 to take part in the "S-D Day" stunt will be improved by a couple of hundred per cent.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

All Intellectual Goose-Stepping Is Definite Mark Of Moral Degeneration

The great profession of public relations is engaged in bringing pressures upon all of us to conform to notions which each side says represent majority opinion. If every time the phrase, "average American," is used one knew exactly what was meant, it would surely produce the evidence that there is no such creature, that most people think for themselves more or less, and come to the very practical conclusion that we can only do the best we can in a very troubled and confused world. Certainly the recent election does not provide any guide to what the "average American" thinks about anything.

Alan Valentine, who used to be President of the University of Rochester and has held important positions in the Government, recently wrote:

"Good citizens are recognizing that deference to popular opinion is their highest civic virtue, that he who questions the wisdom of the majority is unworthy of their tolerance, that private doubts cannot be harbored in democratic society. But there still remain, alas, intransigent reactionaries devoted to an outworn liberal tradition; there are still some self-opinionated descendants of Voltaire and Thomas Paine, and our universities still give asylum to perverse professors who are confirmed addicts of independent thought. Were it not for them, the nation might already have attained full cerebral standardization."

This I took to be satire because it is in an article entitled "A Modest Proposal for the Care and Use of Subversives," which is a reminder of Dean Swift's suggestion about eating babies to avoid famine in Ireland. Satirical as these sentences may be, the idea does prevail among too many of our citizens that because a government official says something, it is ipso facto true and should be accepted.

The citizen's problem, however, is not so much to accept judgments as it is to get at facts; what he is being fed, even in the news, is propaganda from a thousand sources. The "self-opinionated descendants of Voltaire and Thomas Paine" need not all be so-called liberals; they may be—and I think most of them are—conservatives who form a minority in a world that is moving toward socialism.

After the United States went to war, we were all told that we must love our ally, Russia. A propaganda that reached down to the elementary grades in the schools told of the wonders of Soviet Russia. Anyone who questioned the wisdom of this propaganda was called a Fascist, pro-Nazi, pro-Japanese, a Hitler-follower, an anti-Semite.

Then when the Cold War started, we were all supposed to change our minds like the Rockefellers change their steps. Suddenly, we were told how wicked the Russians really are. Now that "co-existence" is being thought of as a policy, we are supposed to think that when Stalin died, and Malenkov took his place, something suddenly happened to the Russian character and mentality which might make everything different. Presumably, when the Russians take their next step in the development of the Soviet Universal State, we shall be asked to change our minds again.

It is not so long ago that this same kind of government propaganda was devoted to causing us to believe that Chinese Communists are not Communists at all but "agrarian reformers." I shall never forget listening to a businessman, who fancied himself as a great authority on foreign relations, telling me that he had it from substantial people that these Chinese Communists were not associated with the Russians at all; that they were only interested in land reform. When I told him about my personal experiences with these same Chinese Communists, from 1921 to 1931, he said, "Well, I have it from very substantial people that all they want is land reform. Then came the Korean War."

There is no greater pressure for conformity from the most ardent conservatives than from the government itself and to one who respects the memory of Voltaire and Thomas Paine, all intellectual goose-stepping is a mark of moral degeneration. When a Congressional committee investigates subversion and espionage, it is not pressing for conformity; it is investigating subversion and espionage, in which anyone may engage if he is willing to risk the consequences of violations of the law. There have always been men and women who forthrightly and courageously were willing to take that risk for what they believed to be true without hiding behind the Fifth Amendment or any other device.

More Important Many Men Are, More Humble They Seem

Among all the pomp and circumstance imaginable, Columbia University, on the occasion of its 200th anniversary, bestowed honorary doctorates upon the Queen Mother of England, Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States, Adlai E. Stevenson, who was at the end of a hot political campaign, and other dignitaries from all corners of the world.

There was music. There were parades, or "processions," as they are called in academic circles. There was a great display of clothes, of jewelry, of military and of all the material signs of success and achievement.

It was enough to turn anybody's head, particularly the heads of many of the VIP's who were invited or who were getting the degrees.

But in this august assemblage, the orator of the day, John Bartlett Breiner, professor of history at Columbia, had chosen for his subject

"HUMILITY."

To the casual onlooker humility was the last thing one would have expected from those who were basking in the sunlight of fame and who, by generally accepted standards, had every reason to be anything but humble.

Yet, Dr. Breiner admonished his hearers that "through humility we might expect to regain the salutary sense of the absurdity of Man, laugh a little more at ourselves and be the better prepared to be laughed at."

The attitude of the humble person, he said, is to admit that he might be wrong—and that this attitude holds good not only in respect to honorary doctors of letters or laws, such as we saw at Columbia the other day, but to all of us.

It is a peculiar fact that, the more a man amounts to, the more humble he seems to be.

I have interviewed many, many so-called important people. Yet, I have found more false pride, more putting on of airs, more imaginary importance among perfectly insignificant men and women than among the leaders in their chosen professions.

It is difficult to explain. Perhaps it is because it takes so much hard work, so many disappointments and so much energy to get to the top, that by the time one DOES get there, one realizes how little, how weak, how insignificant the human being really is.

"I could be wrong"—almost every great scientist, every really big doctor, every noted lawyer will admit that.

It is only the little pipsqueak who is always right, who simply cannot bear to be wrong.

Tell him that he IS wrong and his pride is deeply hurt. Disagree with him and he will give you a violent argument.

Not because he thinks that he is RIGHT, but because he knows that you may have caught him unawares at his ignorance.

Pride, conceit, know-it-allness are particularly prevalent among the young who have not yet learned the science of ignorance.

There is, however, nothing new about that. Wasn't it St. Peter who said: "Likewise ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder; yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility?"

You might notice that Peter admonished not only the young, but the elders likewise to be humble.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Ike Will Offer Military Training Plan To Congress

Washington, Nov. 22 — President Eisenhower will place before the next Congress a new military training system that will be a combination of both the draft and UMT.

Advance word of this has been received by Senate and House leaders of both parties.

The White House has informed them the new military training program will be the most comprehensive and flexible ever proposed in peacetime. Also, that it will be sent to Congress early in the session so the plan can be put into operation before June 30, when the existing law expires.

The proposed system has been approved by the National Security Council, top policy agency of the government. However, certain details are still tentative and may be revised. But the over-all format is set and the major provisions are:

Continue Selective Service, to permit the drafting of men between the ages of 19 and 26 for two years, followed by six years in the reserves.

Establish a limited form of universal military training, under which 100,000 draftees a year will be allowed to take a six-month course of intensified training and then be obligated for nine-and-a-half years reserve duty under penalty conditions.

Continue temporary college deferments; also unlimited voluntary enlistments in the three armed services.

The new law to cover a period of four years, instead of one and two years as has been Congress practice.

Primary purpose of this new plan is to develop and maintain for an indefinite time a national military force of 3,000,000 men in uniform and another 3,000,000 trained reserves available for instant recall to active duty.

This program is expected to require an upward revision of the military budget. It may have to be increased as much as $1,000,000,000 above this year's $29,401,000,000.

Defense Secretary Wilson hoped to hold the new budget of the armed services to $26,000,000,000. The total requested by the Joint Chiefs of Staff was approximately the same as the current budget; but Wilson wanted to cut this by $3,000,000,000. That appears doomed by the added demands of the new military training plan.

The Details—Certain to be the most controversial feature is the universal training proposal.

Congress has repeatedly backed away from this, despite widespread and powerful advocacy. In 1917, the late Senator Robert Taft (R., O.) in effect killed a UMT measure that appeared headed for enactment by denouncing it as "un-American and tyrannical."

Visit—Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy J. Koehler and son, Lee, will spend Thanksgiving with Mrs. Koehler's family in Norristown.

In NYC—Miss Ruth Jones and Miss Josephine Kerns spent the weekend in N.Y. C.

In Bangor—Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harmon and children, Jack and Susan, will spend Thanksgiving in Bangor.

Record Policy

The Daily Record editorial page is designed to be an open forum for the views of columnists, readers and others who represent all shades of opinion. Their views do not necessarily reflect the opinions of The Daily Record.

Congressional leaders have been told the formula which President Eisenhower will sponsor will be in general as follows:

Limit UMT to a maximum of 100,000 trainees a year; the system to be directly under the Defense Department and run by it; each state will be allotted a UMT quota based on population; applications will be granted on a first-come-first-serve basis; trainees will receive $30 a month; and the nine-and-a-half years reserve requirement to be enforced by loss of veterans' rights.

This enforcement provision is something new. It will also apply to the draftees who put in two years on active service and six in reserve.

An unpublished memorandum of the Security Council stresses that a basic intent of the new plan is to put teeth into the reserve system. It lacks that now. There is no enforcement of existing reserve requirements. But the Council points out that the objective of the new program is "to provide sufficient manpower for the armed forces to carry out their assigned missions and to build up an adequate reserve to meet all requirements."

Congressional leaders have been told President Eisenhower will discuss this far-reaching plan in his State of the Union message to the new Congress in January. Shortly thereafter, he will submit the program in detail in a special message.

Following are publishable highlights of the Security Council's memorandum:

"Active Service—All qualified young men will be required to serve, through voluntary enlistment or induction, a minimum period as members of one of the armed services. It is assumed that a compulsory reserve system will not be acceptable to the American people unless all qualified young men are required to participate in active and reserve military service. All qualified young men that do not enlist in a service of their choice will be inducted."

"Reserve Service—All men released from active service will be liable for service in the reserves. The over-all maximum period of active and reserve service will not exceed a total of eight years, except those taking training under the UMT program, who will be liable for 10 years. All periods of active service over 24 months will reduce the maximum requirement for participation in the service callable reserve on the basis of one year's active service substituting for two years of reserve service. Four-year enlistees will have a service callable reserve obligation not to exceed two years.

"Exemptions—There will be no permanent exemptions from the Selective Service obligations. Voluntary enlistment in a reserve program by men without prior military service will not exempt them from the obligation to serve the minimum period in the active forces."

The Broadway Scene

Curtain Time: Graham Greene's new drama, "The Living Room" (a long-run London hit), opened at the Henry Miller Theatre with Barbara Bel Geddes.

The critics attacked it, having praise only for the cast . . . This column was alone in its verdict: "The No. 1 Dramatic Smash." There isn't a drama on the boards that can complete with its wallop . . . The Grim, somber and melancholy, the reviewers complained, which is what they should have said about the late, unlamented, "All Summer Long." But they praised that very dull show and we didn't . . . In all fairness to the Highly Respectable readers (and the devout) they will probably not appreciate "The Living Room" . . . If you are married, however, and in love with likely else—you will very likely understand what the author argues about. You will suffer the same agonies the lovers suffer . . . Because "The Living Room" is the tragic story of every sinner . . . Besides the fine smothering by Miss Bel Geddes there are worthy accounts by Ann Shoenmaker, Michael Goodliffe, Walter Fitzgerald, Carol Goodner and Nora Nicholson.

In The Wings: John Barrymore could never understand why Lionel was more successful in films, despite his own tremendous stage reputation. Lionel explained the situation to his arrogant brother this way: "In Hollywood the producers insult the actors!" . . . Author James Jones was introduced to a giddy girl at Chest Cardinal. "This is the man," said Dan Cupid, "who wrote 'From Here to Eternity' . . . 'Yeah?' was the baby-stare retort, 'Let's hear y'um it!'"

The Cinemagic: Mr. Brando's impressive portrayal of Marlon Bonaparte in 20th's "Desiree" helps Napoleon conquer the box-office. The reviewers were enraptured. Jean Simmons is The Great Man's Waterloo . . . "Drum Beat" is the November edition of Alan Ladd's heroics. Indians as well as the script bite the dust . . . "The Last Time I Saw Paris" records every heart throb of a poignant tale. Elizabeth Taylor's beauty is its music . . . "The Heart of the Matter," a Britisher, retains the novel's dramatic impact and extreme sensitivity . . . "The Unholy Four" is a murder mystery. Who killed the plot? . . . "Phffft" with Kim Novak is full of laughs, according to most critics. Kim Novak (she has that kim-bither look in her eye) is enough bait for me.

Stairway To The Stars: Bob Hope will import a "discovery" from London. Audrey Hepburn, an expert pantomimist . . . "House of Flowers" expects none of its principals to miss any shows. The understudies Are That Good . . .

Stalin's Death, Whether By Murder, Or Not Probably Ended Plan For Another Big War

By LEONARD RANDOLPH
 WAS JOSEPH Stalin murdered? At least one foreign affairs expert, news correspondent Robert Magidoff, doesn't think it matters.

The question, as Magidoff sees it, is purely academic. Here's the way the long-time Moscow correspondent for Associated Press put it in his appearance before Dutch Treat Club in Stroudsburg Friday night:

Stalin had carried on a 30-year campaign of persecution against minorities in Russia. Gradually, over a period of years, a state of acute tension and unrest was built up within the Soviet.

Finally, Magidoff said, "something had to snap." The "something" was Stalin himself.

"Whether by accident of history or by design of his colleagues, Josef Stalin died," Magidoff said. "And since he died we have heard countless times the question—Was he murdered?"

In some cases, the correspondent went on, an answer to that question might prove something of the moral nature of the man who may have done the killing.

In the case of "Malenkov and company" there is no doubt that "they were capable of murder." Therefore, he said, the answer is no longer important.

What is of importance in Stalin's death, he said, is what might have happened had Stalin lived.

"It is possible that if Stalin had not died he might have brought on a war to mobilize the people behind him. It would have been a global war in which we and all other free nations would have been involved," he said. "Such a war would have been a disaster."

Magidoff then enumerated some changes which have occurred in Soviet attitudes since Stalin: release of German war prisoners and increased friendliness toward delegations from other countries.

Because of this softer attitude the general tenor of diplomatic relations has grown more cordial, he indicated, until recently even Vishinsky — "Mr. Poison himself" — has relaxed.

But most important of all the "changes," he said, have been those taking place inside the Soviet Union including the abolition of the one-man dictatorship (Stalin) which ruled the country before.

The present system — the Presidium (Politburo), the Central Committee and the Communist Party Congress — "spells more democracy," Magidoff said, if only because there is more division of authority.

Russian leaders are "no longer hiding behind the Kremlin walls," he continued. "They have now virtually abandoned the Kremlin, thrown it open to the public. Children now have New Year's parties there."

Each of those moves has cut down fear among the Russian people, he said. "Religion is now tolerated more than it ever was under Stalin. Writers and musicians have been told they can write as they please. Shostakovitch need no longer fear he may be hit over the head when he writes a new symphony," the newsman declared.

As in all matters dealing with Soviet government policy, however, he continued, the first question must be: "How real are these changes? How far from Stalin?"

To understand the changes, he said, it is necessary to analyze the conditions which prevailed up to Stalin's death. A self-glorifying man, Stalin had forced the image of himself as a giant upon the people.

"Stalin led the people through a terrible war, to victory. Yet such was the ruthlessness and the insanity of the drive in him that at the time he died Russia was on the brink of war with the entire free world."

"Nothing could horrify the Russian people more," Magidoff said. "There is hardly a family in the nation that has not lost at least one member in a war. This (global war) was one vast tragedy which the Russian people realized Stalin was leading them toward."

"At the time Stalin died there was tremendous tension and unrest in the country. There was not a class in Russia which did not feel the oppression of Stalin's rule."

"The Army was afraid. The workers hated the regime because they are more chained to their jobs and miserable living conditions than any other working class in the world. The workers are literally serfs who cannot leave jobs, cannot protest or strike. Their union represents the government—not the workers."

"The peasant, too, is a serf who cannot leave the collective farm without permission. Yet the peasants are the only class ever able to defy Stalin and get away with it."

This peasant revolt, Magidoff said, occurred when "collectivism was first introduced and the peasants struck in the only way they could—they slaughtered half of their animals."

Met with this resistance, Stalin "retreated until the war was over," he said. "Then he felt strong enough to try to break the peasants up."

Stalin ordered "whole small villages burned, homes destroyed," the newsman said. Again, the peasants rebelled. They burned their own villages and larger ones, set fire to the huge collective granaries and again slaughtered their animals, he declared. The resulting furor caused Stalin to embark on a long siege of reprisals against minority groups, uprooting entire cities and communities, he said.

Stalin also met opposition in the religious beliefs of the Russian people, Magidoff said. Despite the dictator's persecution, religion was "a living force in Russia" and, at the beginning of World War Two, Stalin was forced to "look truth in the face . . . and seek the help of religious leaders in mobilizing the people" for the war with Germany, he said.

Because of this continual climate of fear and persecution, it may have been necessary for those who followed Stalin to make a show of "change," Magidoff implied.

"I do not feel that the changes allow us to sigh in relief (because) one thing has not changed," he said. "That is the fact that the Soviet Union is a dictatorship by the Communist Party."

"We cannot just shrug them off and say they are murderers," he said. "They are more than murderers. They have a political program which appeals to the millions of underprivileged in Asia, South America and other areas . . . who do not know that their words of prosperity are sham."

"The Communist Party has robbed the most beautiful dreams of Man—from Plato on down — and made it part of its program" without believing in the theory or intending its practice, he indicated.

One of the major strengths of the Party, he said, is its "rigid" discipline—a discipline which extends to every one of the six million party members deployed throughout the country (Russia). There is not a group there which doesn't have a Communist Party member who sees to it that the group follows the Party line," Magidoff said.

Since the death of Stalin, he continued, "the Politburo is now in complete control of the Party. If it decides, overnight, that 'peaceful coexistence' is out, then it will be," he said.

Major changes in official Soviet policies have occurred twice since Stalin's death a year and a half ago, Magidoff noted. At first, he said, the attitude toward religion was "all sweetness and light" but when religion became too strong the Politburo became colder toward the churches.

A taste of freedom proved too strong for Russian writers, too, Magidoff said, and the attitude changed drastically in a short time. When the government told writers to "go ahead and write without restriction" it was only a short time before "novels came out depicting Soviet leaders as drunkards" and "a poem criticizing censorship was published," Magidoff said.

When the Soviet leaders learned the power of the printed word "four writers were expelled from the Writers Union, two editors lost their jobs and a play was closed down," he said.

Now Magidoff said, the Soviet leadership has apparently adopted an attitude of patience in keeping with the original Leninist-Stalinist theory that revolution passes in cycles across the face of the world.

The younger men in the Politburo are not so confident as Stalin was and therefore must listen, he said. "But the Free World is not what it was in 1945. We had illusions then, and dreams. Now none of us has any. We are not naive anymore and it depends very much how strong we are—morally and militarily—on which way Russia will go."

"Today we face the fact that we are facing many more years of no war and no peace (in which) any thing can happen. We have to be patient and wise. We must maintain our military strength and our economic prosperity."

"We are fighting (now) not only for ourselves but for those hundreds of millions of people (who) are neutral; the millions of people whose dream of freedom and happiness was given reality by the 13 colonies rebelling against an unreasonable force."

"But now many of these underprivileged have come to identify their dream of happiness with Communism. If we allow them to fall permanently under the spell of the Communists we will pave the way to our own destruction," Magidoff said.

"If we do not lose our sense of freedom. If we do not degenerate into a dictatorship—either of the right or the left—as a sort of counter-force to the Soviet, we will win," he said.

In closing, Magidoff cited two quotations. The first was an epigram by Oscar Wilde: "If there is anything more wrong than no justice it is justice without her sword in her hand."

The second was a line from Robert Browning: "Blessed are those among nations who dare to be strong for the rest."

Chicken-Man Fights Feed Price Fixing

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21 (AP)—An 81-year-old chicken farmer goes into U.S. District Court tomorrow to try to stop the federal government from telling him how much wheat he can grow to feed his flocks.

Joseph Blattner, who has operated an 188-acre farm in Worcester Township, Montgomery County, Pa., since 1903, has filed suit attacking the government's surplus crop control program that dates back to 1938.

Blattner maintains that his constitutional rights, under the ninth and tenth amendments, are being violated.

The trial gets underway before U.S. District Judge Alan K. Grim. Specifically, Blattner wants an injunction to restrain enforcement of the acreage controls.

The government contends the farm price control regulations were upheld as legal by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1942.

Blattner's attorney, J. Kennard Weaver, doesn't dispute that but he argues that the price and acreage controls were originally set up to promote wartime production of food and were passed under the constitutional provision permitting congress to regulate interstate commerce.

Blattner says his farm is not in interstate commerce, that its production is consumed within the state of Pennsylvania.

The chicken farmer's main beef is that the agriculture department is denying him the right to grow 24 acres of wheat which he claims he needs to raise to feed his 6,000 laying hens.

In background his suit, Blattner said that the government in 1952 ordered him to plant only 16 acres of wheat, but Blattner planted 24 anyway and was fined $179.29.

Last July farm agents advised Blattner that his wheat acreage would be reduced in 1955 from 16 to 14—and Blattner decided to sue, claiming the government action was denying him due process of the law as guaranteed under the constitution.

Postmaster On Crutches Kills Bear Hunting In Pike County

WALKING ON A CRUTCH didn't stop George Neiring from bear hunting Saturday.

Neiring is Stroud's postmaster. He is also president of the Pocono Paradise Gun Club.

Saturday Neiring went hunting in Barrett Township. In the vicinity of Painter's Swamp, near the Pike County line, Neiring blasted away at a bear and got him.

It's the fourth bear he's brought home in the past ten years. Hog-dressed the bear weighed 299 pounds, Neiring reports.

The 50-year-old postmaster says "I've been hunting ever since I was a young kid." About seven months ago it looked as though Neiring would come perilously close to missing the 1954 season entirely.

He entered the hospital where a delicate hip operation was performed. When he was released, he had to walk on crutches.

After several months he discarded one of the crutches. Saturday—crutch or no crutch—Neiring was determined to hunt bear.

The new bear will be used to decorate the interior of a motel slated to open soon near Bushkill.

The largest bear Neiring ever brought down now graces the mantel at The Old Heidelberg restaurant near Swiftwater.

Other members of the hunting party were Norman Transue Sr. and Norman Jr., Everett Transue, Kenneth Gardner, Stanley Storm, Lawrence Storm, Joseph Liney, "Miz" Kudzin, Frank Mayer and Otto Lia, Neiring said.

Jury Calls For Revocation Of Racer License

MERCER, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP)—A coroner's jury, saying youthful drivers convicted of "racing or hot rodding" should have their licenses revoked, recommended a young driver be charged with involuntary manslaughter in the traffic deaths of three boys.

State police said Saturday they will file charges against James McClimans, 19, of Greenville. He was the driver of a car which sideswiped another auto driven by Joseph R. Thompson III, 18, of Sharon, on a road near Greenville Nov. 7.

Thompson and two passengers in his car were killed. The others were Richard Roux, 18, of Sharon, and Matthew J. Good, 18, of Sharpville.

McClimans and three companions in his car were slightly injured.

The jury urged state laws be changed so "that all operators' licenses issued between the ages of 16 and 21 be conditioned so if license holders are convicted of racing or hot rodding the licenses shall be automatically revoked until the holder is 21 and renewed only after a rigid examination is passed."

EIGHTY-SIX children attended a party at the fire hall, under auspices of the Women's Fire Auxiliary. Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Esther Geshensky, Mrs. Irene Potter, Mrs. Mabel Lightner, Mrs. Jean Davis, Mrs. Ella Lightner, Mrs. Stanley Siphroth, Mrs. Henry Kulp and Mrs. Jesse Morely. There were relay races, sack races and other competitive games for which prizes were awarded, and finally every guest got a prize bag. Sodas, hot dogs, candy were served.

The successful bake sale held at Wyckoff's Department Store by the women of the Presbyterian Church, Friday, was taken care of by Mrs. Guy Kemper and Mrs. H. J. LaBar. In December, the 16th and 17th, the women hold their rummage sale in Stroudsburg.

The "hoe-down" for the benefit of the treasury of the Boy Scouts and Scout Cubs, was enjoyed by about 150 guests, Friday night, in the fire hall. They had square dancing and—for the younger children—hokey-pokey to the music of Lamont Nauman's Pocono Promenaders. From 8 to 11 p.m. den mothers Mrs. Henry Kulp and Mrs. Walter Bryfogle, assisted by Mr. Bryfogle and Herbert Baker, sold sodas, ice cream and hot dogs. Guests are asking for a repeat night.

Almost a practice run was the one made by the men of Chemical Hose Company No. 1, when they were called out about 1 p.m., Saturday to a fire at the site of the old Water Gap House. Young folks who started a bonfire and found it starting to spread ran to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shumaker and gave an alarm. Two fire trucks went out; but there was no real fire fighting to be done.

The Pocono Wild Animal Farm closed for the season last week and by the end of the week all the animals had been shipped away to their winter quarters in the New England states.

Mr. and Mrs. John Motts and A/3C Bruce Motts called on friends in the borough, Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Motts expected to drive down to Camp Kilmer with Bruce

Monday when he reported there for his assignment to foreign service. Mr. Motts will be making a business trip to Washington, D. C. this week. Bruce is disappointed to leave before getting a chance at bear hunting. He has a bear that he'd like to meet up with again. Last time, a year ago, the bear came upon Bruce sitting by a tree and napping after a strenuous hunting hike. Bear and Bruce took off in different directions.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jagers, Jr., and two young sons are moving this week to East Stroudsburg. They have been living with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jagers, Sr.

Christmas Cards To Benefit World's Children

UNUSUAL CHRISTMAS cards are those being sold by the United Nations' Children's Fund, known as UNICEF, for the benefit of millions of underprivileged children all over the world.

There is a series of five designs by the famous book illustrator Roger Duvoisin. With characteristic warmth, humor and charm, he has portrayed in five illustrations, the amusements of boys and girls in Austria, Indonesia, Iran, Korea and Mexico. The series is entitled "Joy for the World's Children."

The local AAUW has a limited number of boxes of these cards, or they may be ordered from the Pennsylvania Committee for UNICEF, Bryn Mawr, or from UNICEF, United Nations, New York.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

We can be thankful for the rain which swelled our streams and must have raised the water level, but we can also be thankful that it finally stopped. A few more house-bound days, and we'd have had whole families not speaking to each other for Thanksgiving.

It's a very rare thing that is an unmissable blessing. Usually there's at least one fly in the ointment. Bobbie Reese and Rosemary Anderson, holding the fort at the Book Fair till closing hours Saturday night were rejoicing at the number of books sold, but sort of dismayed by the number which will have to be stored away for another year.

Some of them, dating back about 200 years, look as if they should be very valuable, but nobody is enough of a bibliophile to be certain. Well, they've lasted 200 years so I guess one more won't matter.

Then there's the matter of holidays. Seems wonderful to think of having a day off in the middle of the week—until you realize that you've not only got that day's chores done before time or afterward but you also have the additional chores imposed by the holiday itself.

Well, I suppose we could be thankful for that fact, too. If holidays were all pure joy, we'd never breathe that sigh of relief when they're over. If they'd sold every one of their books, next year's committee would have to start from scratch. If it weren't for those nights of treacherous fog we wouldn't be so grateful for wind-swept—but clear—highways.

Pike Co. GOP Women Elect Mrs. Emma Bock

Milford—“Close ranks and hold tight” was the slogan suggested by Representative August Metz when he addressed the Pike County Council of Republican Women at their meeting Monday evening at Pinchot Grange Hall on “The Effect of the Election in Pike County.” Metz was referring to the disunity and disorganization in the party that was responsible for the loss of the recent elections. He said that many people had the idea that the Republicans couldn't be defeated, but the loss of the elections has awakened the people and may prove to be for the better as it will have a strengthening influence among the party. He expressed the hope that the House members lost will be recovered in the next two years and said he felt assured that victory in the General Assembly would put the Republicans back in power in the state.

Metz advocated tax measures as the only means to overcome the demands put on the state by the people. Improved roads, schools, etc., must be paid for and the only equitable course is through taxes. “My politics are clean and will stay clean, but we must have taxes.”

A question and answer period followed his talk, which was preceded by a brief business meeting conducted by the first vice president, Mrs. Ralph Dodd, in the absence of the president, Mrs. Gilbert Day.

The following officers were nominated for the ensuing year, to take office in January: President, Mrs. Emma Bock; first vice president, Mrs. James Bryce; second vice president, Mrs. Diana Banks; treasurer, Mrs. R. K. Fields; recording secretary, Mrs. Flora Benjamin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Henrietta Pennell.

A motion was made to send a check to the County Welfare Board to be used for the needy at Christmas time.

Following adjournment refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Kingston is the capital city of the island of Jamaica.

Customers and salespeople reacted noticeably on Saturday when suddenly, from our store amplifiers, came the mellow notes of our store organ in the nostalgic chords of “White Christmas.” Men and women all up and down the center aisle began smiling at other men and women, whether or not they knew them, and there was a scattered chorus of such lyrics as “Yes, it's nearer than we think.”

Christmas was very evident in Wyckoff's. You saw it in the shimmering green, and red, and gold plastic trees with their boughs ornamented in shiny glass, and in the musical alarm clocks from Germany that tinkled a merry greeting to the newly arrived and more sedate clanging alarms from the same country. One could almost imagine them saying to each other, “Why hello, stranger—never thought I'd meet YOU here.”

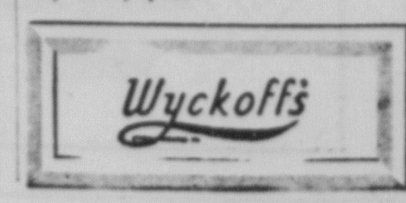

Christmas was seen in riotous splendor on the table of bright Swedish ware, where cups, bread boards and a very new, unusual shipment of pitchers made one think of sizzling holiday foods, tempting the family from the spruce fragrance of the living room to the fattening fragrance of the reunion table. “Aren't these precious?” Hannah Shupp asked, showing two too beautifully carved wooden spoons suspended from either side of a carved wooden chain. “They are Swedish bridal spoons. I'm not sure how they are used... maybe they're worn around the neck like this, so that the couple can sit close as they eat. Anyway, they came in our latest Swedish shipment, and they're certainly different.”

Hannah's favorite descriptive word, I noted, is “spunky.” The adorable dolls in all size and types of dress along the center aisle are “spunky.” So are the diminutive china animals. So are the tiny snow - encrusted bells with shiny red clappers on the table of Christmas tree ornaments. And she is right. “Spunky” is the perfect word... and I'm sorry I didn't think of it.

You could see Christmas Saturday in the blue and silver glory of our cosmetic case where Evening in Paris appeared in its moonstruck splendor on a bed of billowing silk... in the shining gold, silver and plastic jewel tones of the comb and brush sets... in the engraved flowers of the compacts... the Chinese silk of the evening bags... the masculine impressiveness of shaving lotions bottled for holiday giving.

You could even see Santa in the bright expectancy of children's eyes as they entered Toytown, and in the obvious delight of those who wandered into the Music Store to hear Ernie's carols. “Silent Night” settled peacefully over us all, as it emerged sofably from the organ, and when the demand was over one youngster demanded, “Why do you stop playing?”

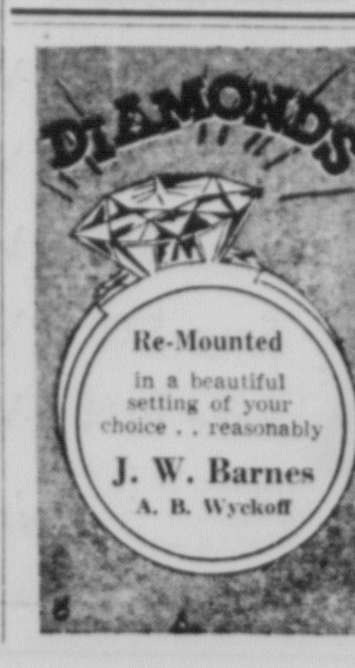

Then, at the close of a hectic day in our gift wrapping center, there was an impromptu, rather mad performance as Blanche Mackey began kicking her legs and yodeling “Christmas trees and holly leaves” at the top of her lungs. “Where could that happen but at Wyckoff's?” a grinning customer demanded. Holt Wyckoff chuckled. “It's a good thing they lost the pattern after THAT one came to town,” he observed. But he was smiling too as the closing chimes sounded. Buttoning my coat and collecting my papers, I had the feeling that all this had happened before. It had, too... for Christmas comes to Wyckoff's in just about the same way every year.

RILEY

Sports Editor

IF THE "Jimmy Carter Day" program goes off according to schedule or even anywhere near the planned pace, it will be one of the greatest athletic events of its kind to ever be held in this locality. The Varsity "S" Club has taken on the responsibility of putting on the entire affair, but certainly needs the help of every organization that can possibly lend a hand. If the program is the success that most of us believe it will be, the Poconos will receive a bundle of national publicity.

Carter, who has trained for his last three fights at Harry's Farm, area fight camp, mentioned Stroudsburg over a national television hookup after winning back the lightweight crown from Paddy DeMarco last Wednesday. His voice was carried to every state in the United States and Canada and Stroudsburg received untold publicity. By Stroudsburg Jimmy actually meant all of Monroe County.

The Poconos could never pay for publicity such as received during Carter's victory speech. Jimmy, the first lightweight and maybe even the first fighter in history to hold the same title three different times, is one of the most popular men in the ring today. He made a fine impression with everyone who knows him in this area and the new champ likes this section of the country very much. The combination of good fighter, good guy and good ambassador caught the attention of the Varsity "S" Club, which in turn has planned a gala program.

Action of the club may have been a little too rapid to suit some people, but it was the only way such an affair could be started. "Jimmy Carter Day" interested two other organizations in the area. But the make up of the organizations required a considerable delay in making the move official. The Varsity "S" Club acted rapidly, believing that such a celebration must be held almost immediately to be successful.

The good part about the entire program is that everyone in the area will benefit. National publicity certainly won't hurt our tourist trade. The merchants won't suffer and in fact will prosper indirectly. The community in general will receive a shot in the arm, as will organizations and individuals taking part in the drive. Its activities such as this that result in good publicity. Inactivity and failure to recognize greatness often times results in bad publicity. Carter is currently riding the top of the fistie world and the fact that he still and probably will always remember this area certainly deserves recognition.

Among the invited guests will be Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission; Ruby Goldstone, famed boxing official and after-dinner speaker, and many of the leading boxing writers of the nation. If only a portion of those invited appear the success of the venture is assured. The venture appears to be gaining in popularity, which is a healthy sign.

Due to the fact that interest is so high in the project this scribe will have to pass up a kind invitation to attend tonight's District 11 Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association banquet in Tamaqua. There is a lot of work to be done publicity-wise and only a short time to carry out the task. The Varsity "S" Club will hold an important meeting on Tuesday night, during which final plans for "Jimmy Carter Day" will be completed.

While speaking of special affairs it affords me an opportunity to publicly thank the Pocono Mountains Baseball League for the fine plaque it presented me at Saturday's banquet. It's at times like this that I find it quite impossible to express my true feelings. I will treasure the award always and in return I wish to thank league officials, team managers and scorekeepers for the fine cooperation which they demonstrated during the 1954 campaign.

Due to the resignation of Dale L. Learn as chairman of the District 11 Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association Committee, tonight's district dinner meeting in Tamaqua will take on added importance. Herman Snyder, Stratford, and Ralph O. Burrows, East Stroudsburg, are both very much in the running for the top position. The one not named District chairman will probably earn the post as vice chairman. The vice chairman position was left vacant by the recent retirement of C. W. Drum, Frackville.

Award Winners Honored At Baseball League Banquet

Large Crowd Present At Annual Affair

POCONO PINES — A crowd of 200 people honored team and individual trophy winners at the third annual Pocono Mountains Baseball League banquet here at Mulligan's Pocono Lake Hotel Saturday night.

Walter H. Sebring, assistant county superintendent of schools, served as toastmaster and kept the program running in clockwise fashion.

Sebring told many humorous stories and introduced many people in the audience.

Jack Esrang, manager of the Lake Harmony club, gave the circuit's Rotating Trophy to Pocono Lake, 1954 pennant winner. A team must win this trophy three times to gain permanent possession. Lake Harmony won it in 1953.

Rep. J. S. Shotwell presented the playoff championship trophy to Saylorsburg club, winner of the post-season play this year. Manager "Gib" Bachman accepted the award for his trophy.

Sebring presented the most deserving official trophy to M. Norman Warner, circuit treasurer. Frank Thornton was scheduled to give the second place trophy to Kunkletown, but Thornton and Kunkletown weren't represented at the gathering because of weather conditions.

The highest batting average trophy was presented by Ted Viechnicki to Dick Serfass, Kunkletown. Harry Janson gave the best pitching award to Tom Czernowski, Pocono Lake. Janson is first vice president of the league. Amzi Altomose, county commissioner, awarded the most popular manager trophy to Dick Miller, Bushkill.

Pocono Lake was presented with The Daily Record Trophy by Jim Riley, sports editor. Manager "Dabe" Miller accepted the trophy on behalf of his team.

Riley in turn was honored with a plaque from the league. The plaque was for what the league termed "good sports coverage" during the 1954 campaign. The award was presented by John Wernett, circuit secretary.

Wernett was given a leather brief case by other league officials. Each team member received small individual trophies.

Tommy Hughes, former pitcher with the Philadelphia Phillies and Cincinnati Reds, spoke briefly to the group, as did Clinton Getz, league president.

The invocation was delivered by Sebring. There was a salute to the flag and group singing. A turkey dinner was served and dancing followed.

Due to the fact that interest is so high in the project this scribe will have to pass up a kind invitation to attend tonight's District 11 Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association banquet in Tamaqua. There is a lot of work to be done publicity-wise and only a short time to carry out the task. The Varsity "S" Club will hold an important meeting on Tuesday night, during which final plans for "Jimmy Carter Day" will be completed.

While speaking of special affairs it affords me an opportunity to publicly thank the Pocono Mountains Baseball League for the fine plaque it presented me at Saturday's banquet. It's at times like this that I find it quite impossible to express my true feelings. I will treasure the award always and in return I wish to thank league officials, team managers and scorekeepers for the fine cooperation which they demonstrated during the 1954 campaign.

Due to the resignation of Dale L. Learn as chairman of the District 11 Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association Committee, tonight's district dinner meeting in Tamaqua will take on added importance. Herman Snyder, Stratford, and Ralph O. Burrows, East Stroudsburg, are both very much in the running for the top position. The one not named District chairman will probably earn the post as vice chairman. The vice chairman position was left vacant by the recent retirement of C. W. Drum, Frackville.

Rams Knock Giants Out Of First Place In Pro Circuit

IT TOOK BETTER than half the season, but the fearsome Cleveland Browns finally moved into their accustomed position atop the Eastern Conference of the National Football League yesterday displacing the New York Giants.

PIAA Posts To Be Filled At Banquet

TAMAQUA — One of the most eventful dinner meetings in the history of the District 11 Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association Committee will be held here in the social rooms of Zion's Lutheran Church tonight.

D. L. Learn, Palmyerton, and C. W. Drum, Frackville, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of District XI, will officially tender their resignations at the meeting which is expected to assemble some 275 representatives from the district's 70 member schools.

A chapter of the outstanding progress in schoolboy athletics will become history with the resignations of the two veteran committeemen who have contributed the better part of their professional careers in the payless service of the PIAA. Learn and Drum were in line for their 20th and 18th one-year terms at tomorrow's re-organizational meeting.

Learn, who is rounding out his seventh year as chairman and has been instrumental in the development of District XI into the foremost district of the PIAA, will conduct the meeting. He will open the program by offering congratulatory remarks to the district's 1953-54 winners.

Included are Schuylkill Haven, football; Nesquehoning, cross country; Slatington, Schuylkill Haven and Coplay, basketball; Pottsville and Lansford, track; Bethlehem, wrestling; Slatington, baseball; Allentown, swimming; Allentown and Emmaus, golf, and Bethlehem, tennis.

The audit will be issued by A. C. Stine, Tamaqua High principal and H. P. Snyder, Slatington High principal. Robert Stevenson, Nesquehoning High principal and District treasurer, will make the financial report.

Two amendments and an expression of opinion will be voted upon by the schools.

Dr. Frank P. Maguire, commissioner of PIAA officials and a resident of East Stroudsburg, will be present at tonight's meeting, as will representatives of Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Bangor High Schools. The Monroe County League is also expected to be represented.

Andrews To Oppose Maxim

The Associated Press
YOSHIO Shirai's fifth defense of his flyweight title, a light heavyweight clash between punching Paul Andrews and clever Joey Maxim, and a featherweight elimination bout between Percy Bassett and Teddy "Red Top" Davis highlight the week's boxing program.

Shirai, of Japan, puts his title on the block against Argentina's Pascual Perez in Tokyo Thursday. Perez, top-ranking 112-pound contender, held the title champion to a 10-round draw in a non-title scrap in Buenos Aires July 24. The title fight originally was scheduled for October 26 but was postponed because of an ear injury suffered by the challenger.

Andrews, a 24-year old cloutier from Buffalo via Lafayette, La., who is ranked as the number two light heavy contender by the world boxing committee, gets his worst big test when he faces Maxim, former 175-pound champion, Wednesday night at the Chicago Stadium (CBS-TV.) 10 p.m. EST. Andrews trained for this fight at Harry's Farm, Columbia, N. J.

In his last effort, Maxim won a controversial eight-round decision over Brooklyn's Floyd Patterson on June 7. The 32-year old Cleveland still is one of the smartest boxers in the game and by beating him Andrews could boost his chances for a title shot at light heavyweight king Archie Moore. Andrews winner of 28 of 31 pro fights, is being groomed also for heavyweight honors by Marshall Miles, former manager of Joe Louis.

Bassett, number one contender, and Davis, number two, battle it out in a 12-round Friday night at Madison Square Garden with a title shot at featherweight king Sandy Saddler at stake. Broadcast and telecast by NBC, 10 p.m. EST.

Juniata, PMC End Perfect Grid Seasons

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

PICKING the national champion in college football this season looks an awful lot like the old shell game.

That old carnival gimmick had a fast-talking, nimble fingered gent switching a pea around beneath three walnut shells. All you had to do to win was pick the shell that hid the pea when he was through.

The experts in the Associated Press poll, which determines the national champ, have the same problem. Three teams—Ohio State, UCLA and Oklahoma—have been shuffling in and out of the No. 1 spot all season. And now, with Ohio State and UCLA having finished their regular schedules unbeaten in nine games and Oklahoma having only Oklahoma A&M left this Saturday to finish with a 10-0 record, all the experts have to do is pick THE team.

Ohio State, No. 1 last week had the toughest weekend of the trio, bumping into traditional rival Michigan in a corker of a showdown for the Big Ten title and the Rose Bowl. The Buckeyes finally pulled it out 21-7 with a tremendous goal-line stand that changed a rugged battle into a rout.

UCLA and Oklahoma, meanwhile exploded all over the joint to win and both made their leagues' bowl representatives look like bad runners-up. The UCLANS showed Southern California how the game is played, 34-0, while Oklahoma held a class on the same subject and trampled Nebraska 55-7.

UCLA, champ of the Pacific Coast, and Oklahoma, still kingpin of the Big Seven, are unable to return to the Rose and Orange Bowls respectively since the rules prohibit consecutive appearances.

That leaves the bowl trips to Southern Cal and Nebraska. Arkansas, the Cinderella team that didn't get home safe but got a princely gift anyway, also used the service entrance to get into a bowl. The Razorbacks, beaten once in the Southwest Conference, tied their second straight decision 7-6 to Louisiana State, but Baylor popped up and bopped Southern Methodist 33-21 to send Arkansas into the Cotton Bowl.

In other bowl doings, Maryland and Duke stayed on equal footing for the Orange Bowl spot against Nebraska. Maryland mauled George Washington 48-6 while Duke stopped South Carolina 26-7. Atlantic Coast Conference selectors will have to choose between the Terps and the Blue Devils.

Notre Dame, shunning post-season appearances, fought back into a possible national title spot by dumping Iowa 34-18 after their controversial 14-14 tie last season. Elsewhere, Harvard won its first Big Three title since 1941 by defeating Yale with a 13-point fourth period 13-0, and Purdue defeated Indiana for the seventh straight time in their old oaken bucket series 13-7.

Other results included Boston U. 19, Temple 7; Holy Cross 46, Connecticut 26; Penn State 13, Pittsburgh 6; Princeton 49, Dartmouth 7; Rutgers 45, Columbia 12; Syracuse 20, Fordham 7.

JUNIATA and Pennsylvania Military College wound up as Pennsylvania's only undefeated and untied football teams for 1954.

The season, except for two games involving winless Penn and Villanova, ended last weekend with the usual battle of traditional rivals. But little Juniata and PMC overshadowed the storied series as they completed perfect slates.

PMC made it seven in a row with a 28-6 win over Albright. Four different players scored touchdowns for the Cadets who notched one touchdown in each period. Albright tallied in the last quarter.

In the traditional games, Penn State shut out Pitt for the third straight season to win 13-0. At Easton, a fire-up Lafayette team surprised favored Lehigh by smothering the Engineers 46-0 in the 90th game of the longest uninterrupted football competition between two colleges. Lafayette scored the first time it got the ball, driving 80 yards. Then the Leopards really poured it on, scoring 29 points in the second quarter to take a 26-0 halftime lead.

East Stroudsburg, Stroudsburg Football Teams Enter Final Phase Of Pre-Game Drills

STROUDSBURG and East Stroudsburg football teams today enter the final three days of practice for Thursday's annual Thanksgiving Day gridiron struggle to be held at Memorial Stadium this year.

East Stroudsburg is currently taking part in secret workouts, while Stroudsburg is holding some of its longest drill sessions of the current campaign. Each is expected to begin tapering off for the big game today.

Both the Mountaineers and Cavaliers are hampered by injuries and each is hopeful that it can find something new to spring on the opposition the "Battle of the Boroughs". The kickoff is scheduled to take place at 10 a.m.

Jack Darr and Dick Andress were high match keggers for Crowe's club, hitting for 577 and 572 respectively. Darr had high single of 213 and Andress was next with a 201. Jake Nittel rolled an even 200 in the last game.

Seven Clubs Set To Operate In Eastern Baseball League

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—The class "A" Eastern Baseball League held its annual meeting today but was unable to decide on the lineup for 1955 since Albany was not represented.

The other seven clubs, including Williamsport and Wilkes-Barre, said they would operate. Both Williamsport and Wilkes-Barre, the two independently operated clubs in the circuit, had been doubtful. But Williamsport has lined up a working agreement with Pittsburgh and Wilkes-Barre said it hoped to find a major league connection at the minor league meetings in Houston November 29.

In event the league finds it necessary to shift one or more franchises, Johnstown and Sanbury in Pennsylvania have been mentioned as possible sites. Both are out of minor league ball at present.

Another league meeting will be held in Houston Nov. 29, at which time a league spokesman said Albany will be represented.

The league did vote to hold its second all-star game next year in August with the city and exact date to be decided later.

Baltimore Franchise On Rocks

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21 (AP)—Thirty-four persons with $2,500 each are wanted—needed, as a matter of fact—to save the National Basketball Association franchise of the Baltimore Bullets.

A group of 16 has offered to buy $2,500 worth of stock each, providing 34 others can be located to take similar amounts. This would raise the $125,000 necessary to save the franchise before next Friday's deadline.

Owner John Knox has left the Bullets' stock in the hands of the club attorney, Ed Jones.

Meanwhile, NBA President Maurice Podoloff, who has given the Bullets until Friday to find enough backing to keep the team together and the franchise in Baltimore, has called a league meeting. Officials will meet Tuesday to discuss the problem of the debt-ridden Bullets.

Varsity 'S' Plans Parade, Banquet

"JIMMY Carter Day" became a reality at a meeting of the Varsity "S" Club on Saturday afternoon when plans were made to honor the new lightweight champion, who has become extremely popular with the people of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg.

The meeting was held in the editorial offices of The Daily Record.

Carter will be honored in the Stroudsburg on Thursday, December 2.

Plans made Thursday call for a late afternoon parade and a banquet at the Penn-Stroud Hotel at 7 p.m.

Robert K. Christenberry, head of the New York State Athletic Commission, will be invited, as will Ruby Goldstone, famous ring official and outstanding after dinner speaker.

Many of the nation's boxing writers and outstanding boxers will be invited to attend the affair in honor of the outstanding boxer who trains at Harry's Farm, area training camp.

Tickets are scheduled to go on sale Wednesday of this week. Each ticket will cost three dollars. Both men and women are invited to attend the program honoring the only three-time lightweight champion in history.

Tom Somers and Ed Jennings were named co-general chairmen for the entire "Day", while Ed Somers and Bill Johnson were selected as parade chairmen.

Jerry Stulgaitis, head football and baseball coach at Stroudsburg High, will serve as director of the banquet program.

Jack Mullins will head the ticket committee, while Joe Whalen, sports announcer at WVPO, and Jim Riley, sports editor of The Daily Record, will serve as the publicity committee.

Another special and important meeting of the Varsity "S" Club will be held at the WVPO studios tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Slippery Rock Runner Wins

BOSTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Nick Costes, a Boston University graduate student from Slippery Rock, Pa., today won his second straight New England AAU Cross Country championship at Franklin Park.

Costes covered the six and one-quarter mile course in 23:26—40 seconds faster than he did it a year ago. He was in front all the way.

Ohio State's Undefeated Grid Machine Wins Official Rose Bowl Recognition By Big Ten

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP)—Ohio State's undefeated football team was named today by the Big Ten athletic directors to meet Southern California in the Rose Bowl game New Year's day.

The announcement came from the office of Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson, Big Ten athletic commissioner, after a telegraphic poll of Big Ten athletic directors.

Ohio State, which closed its season yesterday with a 21-7 victory over Michigan, has accepted the invitation, the announcement said.

It'll be Ohio State's third trip to the Rose Bowl and second since the Pacific Coast and Big Ten began the present series in 1947.

Ohio State was beaten by California 28-0 in 1921 but the Buckeyes avenged that defeat with a 17-14 triumph in 1950.

Ohio State finished the season with a 9-0 record, capped by Saturday's stirring 21-7 triumph over Michigan. The Buckeyes won seven conference games also defeating Indiana, 20-8; Illinois, 40-7; Iowa, 20-14; Wisconsin, 31-14;

Northwestern, 21-14; and Purdue, 28-6.

The Buckeyes defeated California 21-13 and Pittsburgh, 26-8, in non-conference games.

It was Ohio State's first undisputed Big Ten title since 1944 when the Bucks went undefeated. Ohio State shared the crown with Michigan in 1949.

It was the first time since 1948 that a Big Ten team went undefeated. Michigan did it that year with nine victories, six against conference opponents.

San Francisco Hangs Fourth Straight Defeat On Steelers

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21 (AP)—The San Francisco Forty-Niners snapped a three-game losing streak last night by whipping the Pittsburgh Steelers 31-3 in a National Football League contest. It was the Steelers' fourth straight defeat.

Smith Sends Persley To Hospital

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 21 (AP)—Arthur Persley, lightweight boxer who lost a televised bout to Wallace "Bud" Smith last night, was in a hospital today from the savage beating he took.

Hospital attendants said he suffered a fractured rib when Smith knocked him out with a smashing right to the heart in the ninth round of a scheduled ten-round match.

Christian Hospital attendants said he was X-rayed after the fight and the broken rib was discovered. They said he was to be discharged Monday.

Persley of Red Cross, La., was a top-heavy favorite to win the match. It was his first defeat since he lost to Orlando Zulueta in New York in July, 1953. In 59 previous fights, he had won 46.

Smith, the aggressor all the way Saturday night, was the 10th ranked lightweight contender. The Cincinnati fighter was even on points when he knocked out Persley, fifth ranking lightweight title contender.

Bangor JV Gridders Invade Pen Argyl

BANGOR — The Bangor High School grid jayvees will invade Pen Argyl today for their annual contest with the Green and White Jayvees.

The Slaters, with a record of one win and five losses, will be seeking to break the Pen Argylites' undefeated record of this season. Pen Argyl has won three games and tied one. They defeated East Stroudsburg, Stroudsburg, and Nazareth while tying Catawauqua. Bangor lost to Catawauqua, Wilson, Stroudsburg, Nazareth, and Northampton while defeating East Stroudsburg.

Coach Paul Wagner, Bangor Jayvee mentor, has announced a tentative lineup of Mike Danko and Mason Mahus at ends; Larry Gray and Harry Nasatka at tackles; Lewis Martocci and Eugene Trigrani at the guard posts; and Don Griffith at center. In the backfield, he has tentatively named Faust Capobianco, at quarterback; Al Piccerillo and Phil Vonnelli at the halfback spots; and Ron DeNardo at fullback. Wagner reports that there may be some last-minute changes in the starting array.

The team of Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., pro who plays out of Chattanooga, and Ira Templeton, amateur from Chattanooga, won by a two and one score.

Russia Dominates Rifle Competition

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 21 (AP)—Russia dominated the free rifle competition in the world shooting championships today, winning the team title with a new record and twice beating the individual international mark.

The Soviet marksmen compiled 5,610 points in taking the team championship. The performance broke the old record of 5,540 set by Switzerland at Oslo in 1952.

Switzerland was second followed by Sweden, and Finland.

Browns Blank Eagles To Gain Lead

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21 (AP)—Cleveland's Browns, rising to their greatest defense in four years, beat the Philadelphia Eagles 6-0 today and moved into first place for the first time this season.

Lou Groza accounted for all the game's points with two field goals, one from 10 yards out in the first period, and the other from 32 in the third quarter.

Late in the fourth quarter, Cleveland held the Eagles for four downs inside their 10 yard line, their greatest performance since 1950 when they stopped the New York Giants from the three in a divisional playoff.

Aiding the Browns this time was a five-yard penalty assessed against the Eagles for taking too long in the huddle.

The victory gave the Browns a half-game lead over the New York Giants in the race for the National Football League's Eastern Division pennant. New York lost today to Los Angeles 17-16.

Philadelphia's most dangerous penetration came after the Eagles' Norm Willey blocked Groza's fourth field goal attempt and ran the ball to the Philadelphia 47.

Two plays later Bobby Thomas passed to Bobby Waldron for a first down on the Cleveland 27.

Pass interference was called against Tommy James on the next play, giving the Eagles a first down on the one.

Neil Worden failed to gain on two line plunges and after the five-yard penalty, two of Thomas' passes fell incomplete.

Marked by numerous flying fists and elbows, the rough game was primarily a defensive battle before 41,530 persons, the largest home crowd for Cleveland this year.

Cleveland's defensive unit gave up only 57 yards to Eagles runners and 53 to the Philadelphia aerials. On the ground, the Browns gained 111 yards and through passing, 185.

Otto Graham, Cleveland's stand-out passer, had a bad afternoon, completing only 11 of 21 pitches. Two of his throws were intercepted by Frank Kilroy.

Even after the game ended, Groza and Kilroy had to be separated from a verbal duel as the teams left the field.

The victory reversed the 28-10 licking Philadelphia handed the Browns in the first game of the season.

The Browns, who took a severe physical beating in that game lost two weeks later to Pittsburgh and were kept out of their accustomed first place until today.

Washington Boss Enjoys High Hopes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Surrounded by friends and associates in the baseball world, Clark Griffith cut into a huge birthday cake today and opined that his Washington Senators have bright prospects for the 1955 season.

Some 150 invited guests, men and women and a few children, crowded into the private clubhouse adjoining Griffith Stadium and helped the white-haired club owner celebrate, 24 hours late, his 85th birthday.

Among those present were both Chuck Dressen, his new manager, and Buckey Harris, the man who for years piloted the Senators. Griffith, wearing a neat grey suit and a yellow rose in his lapel, voiced a hope that his team next year would bring Washington fans a league pennant. The last they won was in 1933.

Two ESSTC Field Hockey Stars In National Tourney

MARJORIE MORRELL AND NANCY NOLL, both members of the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College field hockey squad, will play in the United States Field Hockey Association National Tournament at Ann Arbor, Michigan, beginning on Thursday of this week.

Each played a major role in the successful campaign just completed by the Warriorettes, during which the charges of Coach Katherine Griffith won three and tied one game. There were no defeats on the 1954 ledger.

Morrell, co-captain of the Normal Hill field hockey squad, is a resident of Prospect Park and Noll hails from Lansdowne. Both will play with the Fourth All-Philadelphia team in the tournament.

Both girls are scheduled to fly to Ann Arbor on Wednesday. Coach Griffith will also travel to the tournament by plane on Thursday.

Tournament play is scheduled for three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Fourth All-Philadelphia team is scheduled to oppose the Third New Atlantic team on Thursday, at 11:30 a.m.

Morrell was selected to play in the national tournament more than a week ago, but Coach Griffith telephoned from Philadelphia last night to announce that Noll had also been named to a tournament team.

Both girls are physical education majors in college.

Close Race In Mexico

DURANGO, Mexico, Nov. 21 (AP)—The race for first place honors in the small stock car division of the Pan-American Road Race became a duel between the Dodge and Ford today as the survivors of a starting field of more than 100 battled through two laps of the 1.908-mile test of mechanical and driving endurance.

The two laps from Mexico City to Durango took a heavy toll of the racing machines but there were no fatalities.

The battle between the Dodge and Ford representatives was a nip and tuck affair which likely will not be decided until the cars cross the finish line at Ciudad Juarez Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Lincoln widened its advantage over Cadillacs and Buicks in the competition for the big stock car prize.

In the second lap today, the Dodge of Tommy Dridale of El Paso won the lap with a time of 2:27.47. Dridale's victory put Dodge in front in the general classification with a time of 1:16:17. He is about six minutes ahead of Dan Morgan of Pueblo, Colo., in a Ford with 1:52:49.

The only East Penn game of the weekend saw Cool Twp. down Suogersville, 22-7. Both Northern and Southern division titles in the conference depend on the outcome of Thanksgiving games with Old Forge and Mount Carmel holding the favored positions in the Northern and Southern tiers respectively.

Besides Danville, Steelton was the only unbeaten and untied club to perform on the this next-to-last card of the year. The Steamrollers collected No. 10 of 1954 by scoring in every period to route Lebanon, 33-5. It was the first Steelton win over Lebanon since 1950 and made definite the Central Penn title deciding contest Thursday between Steelton and once-tied Williamsport.

Lower Merion, (8-0), also scheduled to end its campaign, against Radnor, was rained out and will play Thursday.

Danville's 41 points against Bloomsburg was the second highest of the year and totaled one more than all 11 opponents scored against the Ironmen. It was their fifth shutout and marked the first time in four years the winning margin between the old time foes was greater than one touchdown.

McMahon was matchmaker with the late Tex Rickard when the present Madison Square Garden in New York City was opened.

Young Football Player Dies

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21 (AP)—A 15-year-old boy, "big for his age," died today in a scrub football game.

The victim was John Fearing, a freshman at Central Vocational High School. He was 6 foot 1 inch tall and weighed over 180 pounds.

Two boys said Fearing collapsed when returning to the line of scrimmage after a play in which the ball was fumbled.

"He just fell down, started turning blue and then lay there without moving," Don Freeman and Ray Barnes told police. His father, John William Fearing, said he never had been seriously ill. Cause of death was not determined.

West, Red Diplomats Are Meeting

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. Nov. 21 (AP)—Strange things are happening at the U.N. these days. For the first time in almost nine years, Western and Communist diplomats are carrying on private negotiations on issues before the world organization and unanimous decisions are emerging.

This does not mean there are no longer any differences between East and West or that the cold war is ended, but it does reflect an important change in atmosphere and attitude and it has resulted in a sharp easing of tension here.

Where the new trend will lead or what is behind the conciliatory gestures of the Russians, this correspondent does not pretend to know. But the Soviet attitude here appears to be an extension of the same policy which led to the end of the fighting in Korea and Indochina.

At any rate, the current session of the U.N. General Assembly has the distinction of being the first since 1946 to achieve a unanimous vote on anything except purely procedural matters. This Assembly already has recorded one unanimous vote and another is expected early this week.

The two questions involved are the already-approved plan of work for the U.N. Disarmament Commission and Disarmament Commission and Disarmament Commission's atom-for-peace plan. The final resolutions on both questions were arrived at in private negotiations.

For the first time in U. N. history, the Russians have submitted their views to the Western delegates privately and sought to have them incorporated into Western resolutions. In the past, they had always studiously refrained from engaging in any private bargaining.

In both the disarmament discussions and the atom-for-peace debate, however, they submitted informal amendments and agreed to modifications and compromises. Although they did not get all they asked for in either case, they won enough concessions to satisfy them.

Even more significant than the simple fact that the negotiations took place is that, on the atom-for-peace plan, the negotiators were Chief U.S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky.

Two years ago, when Lodge first arrived here as head of the U.S. delegation, he refused to have his picture taken shaking hands with Vishinsky and the fiery Soviet delegate spent most of his time blasting the United States and the West in general.

One day last week, observers noted Lodge and Vishinsky in a private huddle on the floor of the political committee. They chatted earnestly, Vishinsky handed Lodge a document and they parted laughing. This was part of the private give-and-take that led to agreement, but it symbolizes the new atmosphere.

Another evidence of the change is the new tone of the speeches heard in U.N. debate. Vishinsky, the prosecutor, has become Vishinsky, the kindly old gentleman, who thanks Lodge for his efforts to explain a point and who apologizes when he differs from the West on some provision of a resolution.

Even on issues on which the East and West differ sharply, the tone of the speeches is softer and more gentle.

Is this just a brief interlude in the cold war? There is one bit of evidence that Russia intends to pursue the new policy for a while. They have just appointed Arkady A. Sobolev, former assistant secretary general of the U.N., as deputy to Vishinsky here. Sobolev is on better terms with the Western diplomats at the U.N. than any other high ranking Soviet diplomat.

State Senator Proposes Public Works Program

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21 (AP)—Sen. John J. Haluska (D-Cambria) said he will introduce a bill in the 1955 General Assembly to set up a state public works program to relieve unemployment.

The plan, which Haluska said would be submitted to the Legislature at the earliest possible moment, will be applicable only to "distressed areas" in Pennsylvania.

It could be set up on a matching basis, he said, with the federal government and local municipalities also providing part of the necessary funds.

Haluska said that in the long run the program would cost no more to the Commonwealth than present measures to relieve unemployment.

"The money is going for relief now anyway," he said, adding that he believed thousands of persons could be taken off the public assistance rolls.

Judge Fred W. Davis

Judge Davis To Speak At Pocono High

TANNERSVILLE, President Judge Fred W. Davis will address the student body and parents of students at Pocono Township High School here Tuesday at 1 p.m.

Judge Davis is appearing in connection with the school's guidance program.

Topic of the president judge of the Monroe-Pike Judicial district will be in keeping with the general plan of the guidance work.

Arranging the program are John Montgomery, vocational agriculture teacher and Elwood Arndt, math instructor in the high school. Both instructors invited all parents of students.

State Places Low Value On Its Teachers

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21 (AP)—Dr. Francis B. Haas, state superintendent of public instruction, says Pennsylvania places "a lower value on teaching service" than does any of its neighboring states.

Haas told a meeting of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers and the Pennsylvania Education Assn. that the commonwealth's best teacher prospects are being lured to New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware by higher salaries.

"It is not an uncommon occurrence for the presidents of our teachers colleges and other institutions that prepare teachers to inform me that every year... superintendents from other states seek out the graduates," Haas declared.

He said officials from the nearby states offer Pennsylvania-trained teachers salaries "much beyond the current salary level even in our best paying communities."

"It would appear to me," he said, "that our primary need is to provide good teaching service through the employment of effective and able teachers."

At the same time the educator said the state's school system needs more funds to maintain adequate standards of education for youngsters.

"We can not have manpower, nor school facilities, nor school finances, nor teachers unless sufficient funds are provided to pay the costs," he added.

Naples Restricts Lucky Luciano

NAPLES, Italy, (AP)—Naples tagged Charles (Lucky) Luciano a social menace today and restricted his movements for the next two years. Among other things, he will not be permitted on the streets at night—from dusk to dawn.

After a 80-minute hearing, a six-member "admonition board" ordered the deported former New York racketeer boss to stay in his luxurious Naples villa after dark, to remain within 12 miles of Naples at all times and to avoid "questionable" companions. The board, a nonjudicial body, also forbade Luciano to visit places of public entertainment and directed him to carry a book in which police may record his movements.

Hunters Share Saddest Tales During Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—Sad stories were common as pigeons on a courthouse in last week's news. Hunters had more than their share of troubles.

Near Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Fred Cashen, 19, hit a buck with his first shot of the hunting season. The wounded animal fell, bounced up and charged. A second shot hit the buck in the side. Cashen fled behind a tree as the deer kept charging. As the animal passed the youth swung his rifle. It broke. For half an hour the chase went on, the angered buck running Cashen from tree to tree. It finally fell from the loss of blood. Cashen finished the fight with a tree limb.

Mrs. Ola Cunningham in Paso Robles, Calif., had a 10-pound white hen turkey she had been raising for Thanksgiving. It had different ideas, and escaped to the hills. For four days a small army of searchers—including the dog catcher—chased it. At last report, it still was a gone gobbler.

A stork proved faster than the police of two states in a race through lower Indiana and into Kentucky. An expectant mother, Mrs. Mercedes Thompson, 29, was bundled into her car at Clarksville, Ind., and police gave her a rush escort to the Kentucky line. There Louisville police whizzed the car to the hospital. It was all in vain. A 6-pound, 10-ounce daughter was born in the car at the hospital gate.

A policeman at St. Joseph, Mo., had his troubles, too. The automobiles of detective Austin Beierle and another driver collided. The second man said he was broke, but gave Beierle his car to pay for the damages. The books didn't balance. Beierle's repairs cost $35—he sold the second car for $12.50.

At Fort Worth, Tex., C. F. Colwell became a hero—but he had a rough time doing it.

The 39-year-old painter was talking with his brother outside of the brother's apartment house when the building caught fire. Colwell volunteered to rescue his brother's clothing.

Rushing inside, he grabbed the clothes and then learned the fire department hadn't been called. He dropped his bundle and grabbed a phone.

Then he found one woman still was in the building and rushed upstairs. A tenant rushing down with a mattress hit him headon and sent him sprawling. It was too late to get upstairs, so he ran outside and yelled for the woman to jump.

She appeared at her window, holding a bottle of ketchup and a jar of mayonnaise. He braced himself to catch the woman. She dropped the bottles on his head and then jumped. The impact knocked him flat. The woman broke her leg.

The clothing belonging to his brother? "Burned up," Colwell said. "I never got back to it."

Teague To Seek Continuance Of Sewage Plant Aid

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21 (AP)—Dr. Russell E. Teague, state health officer, said he will ask the 1955 General Assembly to renew its appropriation for repaying municipalities which have built sewage disposal plants.

A two million dollar fund was provided by the 1953 Legislature to pay the local governments up to two per cent of the cost of facilities constructed since 1937.

"If renewed every two years," said Teague, "the entire cost to municipalities will be paid off in 50 years."

The secretary spoke before the third annual Clean Streams Conference, sponsored by the State Chamber of Commerce, U.S. Sen. James H. Duff was to attend the session but was detained by Senate business at Washington.

King Edward II of England defined the inch as equal to three grains of barley laid end to end.

Haas Upholds Dismissal Of Philly Teacher

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21 (AP)—Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of public instruction, upheld the firing of a teacher who invoked the fifth amendment in refusing to say if he had ever been a communist.

The decision is believed to be the first of its kind involving the immunity of the fifth amendment, although the courts have ruled in Pennsylvania that Communists may not teach in public schools.

The ruling was made on the appeal of Solomon Haas, a Philadelphia teacher who was dismissed by the Philadelphia school board last Jan. 7.

Dr. Haas ruled: "When a public school teacher pulls down this cloak of immunity, in our judgement his employer would be most remiss in his obligation to American children and their parents if he did not at once remove such teachers from the class room."

Teacher Haas was charged by the school board with "incompetency" and with the "persistent and willful violation of the school laws of the commonwealth."
